No

In the Japan National Food Systems Dialogue with Nougyoujoshi Project (female farmers groups project) held on 13th April 2021, MAFF explained the outline of FSS including the purpose and the key issues of sustainable food system and asked following questions. Q1 Characteristics of Japanese agriculture and what Japan can contribute to the world Q2 What kind of support would you like to ask the national and subnational governments for activities in the community? Q3 What kind of support would you like to ask the national and subnational governments for activities in the community? Q4 What are the most difficult things you have experienced as female head of the family farm? Q5 Numerical goals are set for the ratio of female executives in agricultural cooperatives and members of the agriculture committees. Are there any impediments or necessary support for female farmers to become an executive member? The members from the project explained their various efforts for SDGs and made comments on the questions.
